The Most Authoritative And Complete Source On America's largest Minority Group.

This annual examination by the National Urban League of the status of Black Americans - now in its tenth year of publication - has achieved a well-deserved reputation as the single most authoritative and complete source of current information on America's largest minority group. Written for the layman, as well as students, policymakers and the media, "The State of Black America - 1985" contains completely new material authorized by some of the most respected scholars in the country.

Anyone interested in the status of American race relations will most certainly want to own a copy of this important publication. This year's edition opens with "An Overview of Black America in 1984" by John E. Jacob, President of the National Urban League, and includes the following papers.

- The Black Family Today and Tomorrow, by James D. McGhee, Director Research for the National Urban League.
- The Phenomenon of the Jesse Jackson Candidacy and the 1984 Presidential Election, by Charles V. Hamilton Wallace S. Sayre Professor of Government, Department of political Science, Columbia University.
- Modern Technology and Urban Schools, by Robert E. Fullilove III, Director of the Professional development program at the University of California at Berkeley.
- Blackening in Media: The State of Blacks in the Press, by Samuel L. Adams, Professor, William Allen White School of Journalism, University of Kansas.
- Blacks in the U.S. Labor Movement: Working or Not? by Lenneal J. Henderson, Professor in the School of Business and Public Administration at Howard University.
- The Potentials and Problems of Black Financial Institutions, by William D. Bradford, Professor and Chairman of Finance, College of Business and Management, University of Maryland.
- Aged Black Americans: Double Jeopardy Re-examined, by Jacquelyne Johnson Jackson, Associate Professor of Medical Sociology, Department of psychiatry, Duke University Medical Center, Durham, N.C.

"The State of Black America - 1985" also contains a complete chronology of the most important events impacting Black America in 1984. Cost, $17.00.

Chief Satiacum Continues The Fight For Freedom .

Testimony of Chief Robert Satiacum

Although I was convicted by a jury. God knows that I did not commit the acts charged.

Captured fugitive Chief Robert Satiacum of the Puyallup Nation in Washington State, was transferred to Vancouver to wait depotation hearings. It is the most recent case of such U.S. government victiimization of Indians Leaders.

Branded as a racketeer and a criminal, convicted by perjured and manufactured evidence, Chief Satiacum's extraordinary achievements as an Indian Leader have been clouded by a one-sided portrait distorted by a shameful political persesution by the U.S. Government.

Women

Black women in the U.S., Africa and the Caribbean. Upon presenting the $10,000 check, Ms. Avery, Church's highest ranking black female executive, saluted Dr. Height for twenty-five years of gracious leadership. She observed, "her role has made a difference in my life. I really don't know if I would be standing here before you today in my current capacity had it not been for Dr. Height's dedication and perserverence in enhancing Negro women's roles in American society.

Obviously touched, Dr. Height responded, "Corporate contributions such as this, help the Council continue its important work on behalf of Black women around the world." Founded in 1935 by educator Mary McLeod Bethune, the Council's local sections and affiliates are currently focusing attention on the problem of teenage pregnancy.

Words Of Wisdom

WHO HATH BELIEVED OUR REPORT? AND TO WHOM IS THE ARM OF THE LORD REVEALED"

FOR HE SHALL GROW UP BEFORE HIM AS A ROOT OUT OF DRY GROUND.

HE HATH NO FORM OR COMILINESS: AND WHEN WE SHALL SEE HIM, THERE IS NO BEAUTY THAT WE SHOULD DESIRE HIM.

I S A I A H 24

BEHOLD, the Lord maketh the earth empty, and maketh it waste, and turneth it upside down, and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof.

And it shall be, as with the people, so with the priest; as with the servant, so with his master; as with the maid, so with her mistress; as with the buyer, so with the seller; as with the lender, so with the borrower; as with the taker of usury, so with the giver of unsury to him.

The land shall be utterly emptied, and utterly spoiled: for the Lord hath spoken this word.

The earth mourneth and fadeth away, the world languisheth and fadeth away, the haughty people of the earth do languish.

The earth also is defiled under the inhabitants thereof; because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, broken the everlasting covenant.

Therefore hath the curse devoured the earth, and they that dwell therin are desolate: therefore the inhabitants of the earth are burned, and few men left.

The new wine mourneth, the vine languisheth, all the merryhearted do sigh.

The mirth of tabrets ceaseth, the noise of them that rejoice endeth, the joy of the harp ceaseth.

They shall not drink wine with a song; strong drink shallbe bitter to them that drink it.

The city of confusion is broken down: every house is shut up, that no man may come in.

There is a crying for wine in the streets; all joy is darkened, the mirth of the land is gone.

In the city is left desolation, and the gate is smitten with destruction.

When thus is shall be in the midst of the land among the people, there shall be as the shaking of an olive tree, and as the gleaning grapes when the vintage is done.

They shall lift up their voice, they shall sing for the majesty of the Lord, they shall cry aloud from the sea.

Wherefore glorify ye the Lord in the fires, even the name of the Lord God of Israel in the isles of the sea.

From the uttermost part of the earth have we heard songs, even glory to the righteous. But I said, My leanness, my leanness, woe unto me! the treacherous dealers have dealt treacherously; yea, the treacherous dealers have dealt very treacherously.

Fear, and the pit, and the snare, are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth.

And it shall come to pass, that he who fleeth from the noise of the fear shall fall into the pit; and he that cometh up out of the midst of the pit shall be taken in the snare: for the windows from on high are open, and the foundations of the earth do shake.

The earth is utterly broken down, the earth is clean dissolved, the earth is moved exceedingly.

The earth shall reel to and fro like a drunkard, and shall be removed like a cottage; and the transgression thereof shall be heavy upon it; and it shall fall, and not rise again.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall punish the host of the high ones that are on high and the kings of the earth upon the earth.

And they shall be gathered together, as prisoners are gathered in the pit, and shall be shut up in the prison, and after many days shall they be visited.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

Public Invited To Attend Guidon Ceremonies At Fort Lewis

FORT LEWIS, WA---The Public is invited to attend a series of formal Guidon Cermemmonies to be conducted for Cadets attending the ROTC (Reserve Officers Training Corps) advanced camp at Fort Lewis Camp Adventure '85.

Camp Adventure trains Cadets to Army Standards and evaluates their Officer Leadership potential. This summer it will involve approximately 2800 Cadets from 131 colleges and universities from 23 States and one territory representing two of the four ROTC regions in The United States.

Camp Adventure is the premier advanced camp and model for the ROTC program nationwide.

The Guidon Ceremony marks the formal welcome and activation of each of the Cadet Training Battalions (about 300 Cadets per Battalion) by the Commanding General of the Fourth ROTC Region, Brigadier General Robert E. Wagner. Included in the ceremony are enthusiastic team cheers by each of the eight platoons of 35 men and women. There is a dramatic "BREAK RANKS' drill where all of the Cadets charge behind their newly received Platoon Guidon (FLAG) to form into a "V" formation for the Commanding General's welcoming address. The event also features Military music and a formal "RETREAT" - The Ceremonial lowering of the US Flag at the end of the day.

Guidon Ceremonies will be held on Friday, June 7; Sunday, June 9; Wednesday, June 12; Friday, June 14; Sunday, June 16; Wednesday, June 19; Friday, June 21; Sunday, June 23; Wednesday, June 26; and Friday, June 28.

All ceremonies begin at 5:00 p.m. and are held across the street from the ROTC Camp Adventure Headquarters, Building 10D4, North Fort Lewis. To get to the Headquarters Building follow the signs to the ROTC Advanced Camp from the North Fort Lewis exit on Interstate 5 and park in the parking lot next to the Headquarters Building.

Center For Justice And Peace.

The Campaign for Human Development (CHD) of the Catholic Archdiocese of Seattle has announced that it is accepting applications for its local grant-making process. Proposals will be accepted through June 28, 1985. Last year, 26 Campaign for Human Development grants were awarded, totalling approximately $42,000. This year, more than $45,000 will be available for local grants. The Campaign for Human Development is designed to support the efforts of low-income people to overcome in themselves and change for us all those social, political and economic conditions which cause and perpetuate poverty. CHD supports these efforts because it believes that in almost every case poverty exists because a person has been put at a disadvantage by factors inherent in our political, economic and social structures which should, in justice, be removed. CHD therefore supports only projects and programs which aim at removing the structural or institutional causes of disadvantage and poverty.

Your project or program may qualify for a Campaign for Human Development grant if, (1) the project or program is controlled by low-income people; (2) the project aims at the removal of institutional or structural causes of poverty; and (3) the project is not inconsistent with Catholic social teaching.

Applications for funding must be received or postmarked by June 25, 1985.

Pre-application assistance is available from the Justice and Peace Center of the Archdiocese. Please contact Tony Lee at 382-4844 or write Campaign for Human Development, 910 Marion Street, Seattle, WA 98104.

Summer Registration

New student registration for summer quarter classes at Fort Steilacoom Community College will be held June 19. Returning students register June 18. Classes begin Thursday, June 20, on campus; however, students may still register through June 24.

Bellevue Jazz Festival

The schedule of performances for the 1985 Bellevue Jazz Festival has been announced. The eighth annual Jazz Festival, sponsored by the City of Bellevue, Department of parks and Recreation, is set for Saturday and Sunday, July 20 and 21, 1985, and will take place on three outdoor stages on the campus of Bellevue Community College. Starting times are 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, and 12 noon on Sunday.

Nineteen (19) professional jazz ensembles have been selected to perform, along with one select student ensemble. Over 70 jazz groups were considered for the festival,according to Coordinator Jim Wilke. "We have a great wealth of jazz talent in the area and I wish it were possible to showcase all of it," Wilke said, "but the 1985 festival does present a good cross-section of what is available." Virtually all jazz styles are represented, including traditional (Dixieland), swing, big band, mainstream small groups and singers, and more contemporary experimental jazz.

Highlights for the 1985 festival include Ernestine Anderson, Diane Schuur, The Quartett with Jay Clayton, Julian Priester, Glen Moore and Jerry Granellis, Ralph Towner Trio, and the Festival Youth Band directed by Roy Cummings. Musicians from Portland and Canada are also included in the Bellevue Jazz Festival, making it the largest gathering of Northwest resident jazz talent presented annually.

There will be a $2.00 voluntary donation per person asked for each day of the festival to help defray expenses. The Bellevue Jazz Festival is sponsored by the city of Bellevue, Department of Parks and Recreation, with support from the King County Arts Commission and the Bellevue Arts Commission.

Beware Of Pets On The 4th Of July

Your child might be able to recite his address, but a lost pet can't. Each summer the number of lost pets skyrockets. The combination of outdoor activities and frightening firecrackers sends many normally calm pets running. Too often they end up far from home, exhausted and unable to find their way back.

According to Virginia Knouse, President of The Progressive Animal Welfare Society (PAWS), "The Fourth of July is a disaster for animals. The 'lost and found pet' classifieds more than double in the week prior to the Fourth, and the month following, as do our lost-and-found calls. All animal shelters are flooded with stray dogs and cats. The most frustratiing thing is that they became lost in the first place; and equally frustrating is that most of them aren't wearing I.D. tags, so it's often impossible to find their owners. It's a real tragedy."

To protect your dog or cat this summer, be sure he's wearing a current, traceable I.D. tag. A city license is traceable if your correct phone and address are on file; but it won't do a bit a good unless the dog or cat is wearing it. Personalized I.D. tags printed with the owner's name, address, and two phone numbers are an excellent idea. Most rabies tags, by the way, cannot be traced to the owner.

To cut down on your dog or cat's chances fo being lost, keep him indoors unless you're outside with him. Neutering will also help combat the pet overpopulation crisis, which results in some 50,000 unwanted cats and dogs being put to death in the Puget Sound area each year.

If you need an I.D. tag, assistance with neutering, advice, or help with a lost or found pet, PAW (743-3845) will be glad to help. Make this summer a good one for your family, including your four-footed friend. For information, please contact Ruth Weimer at 743-1884/743-7297.

March Of Dimes Need Your Help

Charitable and civic organizations are always looking for volunteers to give them a hand, but the March of Dimes has put out a call for some very special hands to help with the first local broadcast of the National Telethon Against Birth Defects. Information about the prevention and treatment of birth defects should be available to everyone, so the March of Dimes is looking for help from people who can sign for the deaf.

People trained in American Sign Language (AMSLAN) who can donate a few hours during the telethon are asked to call the March of Dimes in Seattle at 624-1373, in Tacoma at 752-9255, or in Everett at 258-9249. The March of Dimes

Help Give Our Kids A Safe Vacation

It's that time again when the change of seasons is marked by summer vacation from school for thousands of children in our neighborhoods. It's also time, reminds Tacoma Police Director Dean Phillips, to be especially careful when driving in areas where children are likely to play, and to teach your children to be mindful of the risks they may encounter while playing or riding their bikes outside.

Motorists should be especially alert when driving on residential streets: children frequently dart out from between cars, or chase balls into the street without ever looking first for oncoming cars. They need to be reminded often that the proper way to cross a street is at the corner, only after they've looked both ways, and that a ball will actually do no damage to a car if it's run over, and the ball can be easily replaced. It is much more difficult and expensive to repair an injured child!

Bike riding is another area of concern, according to School Safety Officer Dave Wright. Many children will be riding bikes for the first time this summer, and they will be uncertain of their skills and very slow to react if they need to. A motorist who approaches a bicyclist from the rear and blows the horn loudly to clear the way may well cause an accident by startling the rider and causing a fall. Older bicyclists must ride their bikes on the street, with the flow of traffic, and obey ALL road signs and signals. However, young riders may ride on the sidewalk, and they must stop, dismount, and walk their bikes across the street, after they've looked both ways. Bicyclists are strongly encouraged to ride on residential streets instead of arterials, where more cars create a greater danger to both motorist and bicyclist.

Unfortunately, there is a dark side to the warm, sunny weather. Young children playing without the supervision of an adult is a prime target for the child molester, and parents must warn their children of the dangers associated with this criminal activity. It is imperative that children be taught at an early age when to say "no" to an unwanted touch, not to believe strangers who offer them things in return for a "favor," or who tell them that their conversation or activity must be kept a secret. Most often, those who sexually molest children often do so after they've gained the trust of the child, which makes it much more difficult for the child to seek help. To increase this difficulty, the perpetrator is frequently a relative or close family friend. Not only is it important for children to be aware of this activity, but they must know that they can trust a parent and come to the parent with their problem, and that the parent will DO SOMETHING for the child. Be sure that children are playing together, and that lone children are not permitted to wander off in secluded areas.

Help your children enjoy their summer vacation by making it a safe and enjoyable one for them. If you have further questions, contact the Tacoma Police Crime Prevention Unit at 591-5965.

Police Need Help In Identifing Rape Suspect

The Tacoma Police Department is seeking the public's help in identifying a rape suspect. The suspect usually attacks young, white females, who live in ground floor apartments that are adjacent to alleyways. This person has committed a series or rapes along the corridor of North "M" Street in Tacoma, although several rapes have occurred beyond this area.

The rape suspect is described as a white male, 26 to 30 years of age, 6 feet tall, medium build, with sandy brown hair. He is usually wearing blue jeans and a blue hooded sweatshirt. A psychological profile indicates that this person may be withdrawn, with few friends, rather shy and submissive, probably quiet, considers himself inferior to women, and possibley living with his mother.

IF YOU HAVE ANY INFORMATION REGARDING THIS SUBJECT, CALL "CRIME STOPPERS" AT 591-5959. A $1000 reward is being offered for information leading to an arrest and charges filed.

President Honors Safeway

On June 14th, President Reagan personally presented James A. Rowland, President and Chief Operating Officer of Safeway Stores, Inc. with a crystal medallion that commemorates the company's outstanding contributions to the communities it serves. Safeway is the only food retailer among 30 companies chosen to receive such an award at a White House ceremony. The awards program, in its first year, is one aspect of the President's campaign on private sector initiatives.

"Safeway operated 2,500 stores in over 1,400 U.S. communities and we are very sensitive to the important role that we play in the life of each of those communities," said G. V. Curttright, Vice President and Manager of the company's Seattle, Division. The Seattle Division operates 138 stores in Washington and Alaska.

"Because we see our customers and our neighbors every day, involvement has always been a cornerstone of Safeway's philosophy, Curttright added. "We are proud to have the White House recognize our efforts in this regard and are equally proud to share the honor that accompanies this award among our 10,525 employees in this Division. Many of them generously volunteer their own time to community activities, in addition to handling the company's corporate responsibility programs with care."

Safeway is also involved in the current private and public partnership that is addressint the tragic situation of missing children. "We are helping create widespread public awareness about missing children participating in efforts to locate children and helping educate children and parents on safety," Curttright said. "Instore child identification programs, photos on milk carton panels, and on grocery bags are all aspects of Safeway's involvement.

Campaign Begins For George Rowing Foundation

The George Pocock Rowing Foundation announced the beginning of its first annual fundraising campaign. The Foundation, a member organization of the US Rowing Association, intends to implement long-range programs to keep Northwest crews consistently in the forefront of world rowing. The Foundation intends to raise most of its funds via tax-deductible individual memberships.

Foundation President Bruce Thelen explains "If you look at rowing here in this region, you have a large number of college programs in which the athlete receives equipment and coaching which range from adequate to outstanding. The size and quality of these local programs means there is a large number of persons here who could go on to row at the highest levels, but universities and colleges aren't in the business of assisting rowers who are no longer students. At the same time the intensity of international competition is such that even the best collegiate crews no longer have much chance for success. Our Foundation hopes to resolve this problem by purchasing equipment, helping graduate athletes find employment which fits the demands of their training, and by retaining the best coaches we can find."

Athletes and persons interested in supporting the Foundation's efforts can obtain further information by writing to the Foundation at 3213 E. Alder St., Seattle, WA 98122.

Do Stock Splits And Stock Dividens Matter?

BY
FINANCIAL CONSULTANT
SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS
1145 BROADWAY PLAZA
SUITE 800
TACOMA, WA 98498

Stock splits, along with their first cousins, stock dividends, are subjects of much confusion among investors. Many people believe that when a board of directors splits the company's stock or announces a stock dividend, shareholders get something for nothing. This, of course, is not true; there are no freebies on Wall Street.

Others think that a stock split means the stock is "on the move" and therefore will go up. There's more truth to this notion than to the something-for-nothing one -- but not much. Consequently, instead of searching for issues that seem on the verge of splitting, you'd probably do better to simply buy stocks with strong growth prospects.

A stock split is nothing more than the division of a corporation's outstanding common shares into a larger number of shares, according to a formula like 2-for-1, 3-for-1, 5-for-1, etc. The usual reason it's done is to create interest in the stock among a wider group of investors by lowering the per share price. Thus, when one million shares trading at $50 a piece split 2-for-1, the immediate result is two million shares trading at $25. Shareholders end up with precisely the same proportionate investment in the company as before the split.

The belief that once a stock splits its price will rise stems from the fact that -- if only for psychological reasons -- many investors do prefer cheaper shares. Therefore, a $120 stock that suddenly costs only $60 (or even $30 in a 4-for-1 split) achieves instant affordability to many investors who might have balked at paying the original price. (But, of course, they get a commensurately smaller piece of the company for their $60 or $30.)

News of an impending stock split may well cause a flurry of buying by "bargain hunters," which indeed pushes the stock price up. This advance, however, is usually only temporary. Split stocks often decline within a relatively short time.

A stock dividend is more clearly beneficial to the investor, but it is still not something for nothing. It is a dividend paid in common shares rather than in cash and may be given in addition to or instead or a regular cash dividend. Normally, the shares distributed are those of the issuing company, but they may also be those of a company subsidiary.

Boards of directors sometimes declare a stock dividend when they want to conserve cash yet still allow shareholders to participate in the company's increased earnings. But remember that as an owner, you are entitled to gain when the company does well; if there were no stock dividend, you would expect a higher cash dividend.

If the stock dividend is 5%, and you own 300 shares, you will receive 15 more shares. But, again, the total value of your holdings will not change because the price of each share will be adjusted to offset the dividend. So, for example, if the price per share before the dividend was $10, after the dividend it would be about $9.50.

Then how does a stock dividend benefit you? If the company keeps paying cash dividends at its previous rate per share (or raises the rate, as is often the case), then the stock dividend is indeed valuable. It gives investors more shares on which to collect cash dividends in the future. But if management cuts the cash dividend to offset the distribution of additional shares, then the stock dividend is of questionable value.

Evans Votes Against All Aid To Nigaraguan Contras

"The same nagging question of our long-term objectives and policies for Central America must be answered before we proceed," said U.S. Senator Daniel J. Evans (R-WA) after his vote against an amendment which will provide $38 million in humanitarian aid to the contras in Nicaragua. The amendment passed by a vote of 55 to 42.

"I did not reach this decision easily," Evans said. "I voted against the proposal with reluctance because it contained some very thoughtful, constructive proposals of considerable merit. These included reiterating our support for the Contadora process; resuming bilateral discussions with Nicaragua to encourage a dialogue between the government of Nicaragua and all elements of opposition; pursuing multilateral trade and economic measures to compli- the U.S. military maneuvers in Honduras and off the coast of Nicaragua if the government of Nicaragua takes certain acton.

"These proposals recognize the diplomatic means that exist to help bring stability to this troubled region. Were we to pursue such positive actions, we would likely find support both within and outside the region for our efforts. Our efforts thus far have brought us little outside support.

"As wholeheartedly as I supported the positive proposals in te Lugar/Nunn amendment, I could not vote for it. The amendment called for 'humanitarian aid' to be given to the contras operating in Nicaragua. But what is this 'humanitarian aid?' Its practical effect will be anything but humanitarian. By providing the contras food, clothing, and other 'non-lethal' items, they will be able to spend more of their money on guns and bullets. To think otherwise is to be less than honest with ourselves.

Pilgrim Rest Church In Revival.

July 1st through July 5, 1985, Pilgrim Rest Baptist Church at 5314 Portland Avenue, Tacoma will be having a REVIVAL, Guest Speaker will be Dr. A.L. Hardy of Rose of Sharon Pencostal Temple, Seattle, WA.

Service starts promptly at 7:00 p.m. each night. The public is cordially invited.

Spiritual Life Institute

Moral and ethnical theology are the subjects for a continuing theological education, ministerial formation, and personal enrichment program at Saint Martin's College July 8-16, this Summer. Designed for both members of the local and wider church community and the general public, the "Spiritual Life Institute," as it has come to be known, is designed to enable participants to join in the monastic and academic community at Saint Martin's in pursuit of developments in theology and religious education. The Institute is composed of seminars and public evening lectures designed to stimulate informal and formal discussion on a variety of moral and ethical issues.

Theologians from throughout the United States will be featured at this excellent institute. Dr. Edward Vacek, S.J., a Jesuit who is an associate professor of Christian Ethics at the Westin School of Theology in Cambridge, Massachusetts will focus on Christian view of human sexuality. Dr. Vacek has taught at the Jesuit School of Theology in Chicago, Northwestern Medical School, Seattle University, and Creighton University. His dissertation at Northwestern University examined Max Schuller's ethics of love. He has published articles in Irish Theological Quarterly, Common Wheel, Catholic Charasmatic, St.Anthony Messenger, Philosophy Today, America, Horizons, and The Journal of Religion.

Dr. Diane Bader, O.P., a Dominican and another seminar leader, will discuss moral reasoning and bioethical choices. Dr. Bader is the director of ethics and human values program at Providence Medical Center in Seattle. Her responsibilities include advise on health care ethical policy to hospital administration, instruction in medical and nursing ethics to professionals, and community education on health care issues. An instructor in Christian ethics in the graduate program of Seattle University, she received a doctorate in Systematic and Moral Theology at Saint Mary's School of Theology at Notre Dame Indianna.

The final seminar leader is Dr. John Langan, S.J., another Jesuit, who will focus on Christian social ethics in a pluralistic society. Dr. Langan is a research fellow at the Woodstock Theological Center in Washington, D.C. He holds a doctorate in Philosophy from the University of Michigan and is a professional lecturer in the Philosophy Department of Georgetown University. In 1983 he was visiting assistant professor of social ethics at Yale Divinity School. He presently serves as a consultant on ethics and social policy at the Chemical Bank of New York and the United States Navy and is the author of numerous articles on Christian approaches to social ethics, on human rights, and on just war theory.

Individuals who wish further information and a brochure on the Spiritual Life Institute should contact Saint Martin's College, The Spiritual Life Institute, Lacey, Washington 98503 or call (206) 438-4360. The Spiritual Life Institute may be taken for credit or non-credit and housing on-campus is encouraged and provided for an additional cost.

O Lord, thou art my God; I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things; thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth.

For thou hast made of a city an heap; of a defenced city a ruin: a palace of strangers to be no city; it shall never be built.

Therefore shall the strong people glorify thee, the city of the terrible nations shall fear thee.

For thou hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his distress, a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat, when the blast of the terrible ones is as a storm against the wall.

Thou shalt bring down the noise of strangers, as the heat in a dry place; even the heat with the shadow of a cloud: the branch of the terrible ones shall be brought low.

And in this mountain shall the Lord of hosts make unto all people a feast of fat things, a feast of wines on the lees, of fat things full of marrow, of wines on the lees well refined.

And he will destroy in this mountain the face of the covering cast over all people, and the veil that is spread over all nations.

We welcome news of your church and civic events.

Basketball Camp For Girls

Mike Willis, Green River Community College women's basketball coach will teach a basketball camp for girls this summer. Willis, who led the Gators to the NWAACC Conference Championship this year, has coached his Green River teams to three straight Region II titles.

Willis will conduct the camp sessions, one for Junior High girls, June 24-28 and "playing the post" for Junior High and Senior High girls, July 20-21.

Willis teaches more than basketball skills. He teaches attitudes for winning on and off the court. In his playing career he was named most inspirational player twice at Green River and once at Pacific Lutheran University. He teaches "YOUGATTAWANNA" basketball, a slogan that is now part of his program.

To register for the girls basketball camps or to get more information on any of GRCC's summer camps, phone Jean Ford at the college. The GRCC numbers are 833-9111, ext. 337; 464-6133, ext. 337 or 924-0180, ext. 337.

Tony Brown's Comments

The New Mullatos.

This month, Crisis Magazine, the NAACP's publication, did what it does best: explained the currents of racist thought and behavior.

Last week, Newsweek magazine presented anecdotal research on the crisis of racism from the standpoint of its victims; some of whom are so damaged that they deny even the existence of racism.

The Newsweek article, setting this tone, opened with a quote by W.E.B. DuBois: "One ever feels his twoness--an American, a Negro; two souls, two thoughts, two unreconciled strivings; two warring ideals in one dark body, whose dogged strength alone keeps it from being torn asunder."

That was a 1904 version of "Am I an American Who is Black or a Black who is an American?" And for his "twoness," the light-skinned DuBois was labled a "marginal man" by E. Franklin Frazier. "Psychic mulatto" was Arnold Rampersad's term for the scholar.

Although he distinguished himself, peace of mind and a psychological resting place always seemed to evade his life.

Ambiguity also prevailed. He railed against segregation and later for it; he denounced Booker T. Washington and later embraced his philosophy; and he lived in Black institutions with chameleon-like ability in his "twoness."

Today's "two-fers" have neither DuBois' historic persecution nor his mulatto complexion to blame. They simply revel in a youthful ignorance about a world made better for them by another Black generation and shaped by today's racist patterns.

Newsweek showed three obese young Black women at poolside with Asian and White friends. One of them, the magazine tells us, "knows that racism exists because her mother told her about it."

She and "her Lacoste-and Calvin Klein Black freinds" were shocked by the "Blackness" of Oakland when they went to Mills college across the bay from San Francisco.

This dark-skinned mulatto grew up "pampered in a totally integrated neighborhood," the article says. Where else could a black person get that confused?

The article continued to explore those kinky-haired, big-nosed, melanin-hued Africans who are accidentially "passing," as Newsweek describes these psychologically pathological attempts to avoid racism by denying both its existence and their own. So, you see, we're left with zero, a generational throwback.

Furthermore, it is instructive to note that Black "progress," not discrimination, produced the weakest link in the generation chain of African-Americans.

These dark-skinned mulattos of 1985 are no more useful to themselves or anyone else than the light-skinned ones of the past.

The Washington Numbers Game.

The Office of Management and Budget, which is supposed to be the guardian of the budget, has taken on the task of undercutting civil rights under the cover of reducing paperwork.

Many government agencies demand statistical breakdowns on race and gender from users of their services. At the Department of Housing and Urban Development, for example, home loan lenders seeking federal guarantees have to indicate the race and sex of loan applicants on their forms for government-insured loan guarantees.

Why? The answer is simple.

In the past blacks, Hispanics and women were routinely discriminated against for housing loans. That discrimination is now illegal and to monitor compliance with the law, HUD, the Veterans Administration, and other federal agencies include race and sex information on their forms.

That way they can total up the statistics and determine whether discrimination appears to be taking place and who is doing it. Take away that valuable enforcement tool and you virtually guarantee that discrimination can go on without fear of being caught or punished.

So why does OMB want to do away with those statistics?

It says they aren't necessary -- that the same numbers are collected elsewhere by other government agencies. But those agencies often do not have the responsibility for enforcing the laws and regulations applicable to HUD and VA applicants.

OMB isn't politically naive, so it doesn't come right out and say its purpose is to get government out of the business of enforcing the civil rights laws. Rather it claims it has the "responsibility under the Paperwork Reduction Act to reduce the burden to the public in filling out forms."

That raises the issue of whether paperwork reduction is more important than civil rights enforcement and suggests a very strange set of priorities. Sure, it is good to cut government red tape and paperwork, but no one ever thought the Paperwork Reduction Act would in effect become the Minority Opportunities Reduction Act.

If OMB has its way other agencies too, will eliminate racial and gender questions on their forms. The Commerce Department, for example, runs programs designed to give minority-owned businesses their fair share of government contracts. Eliminate the Department's data collection procedures and you virtually ensure that it will not be able to measure progress.

The Transportation Department is affected too, since it administers similar set-aside programs. Federal monies distributed to states and cities could also be used to discriminate without data on race and sex of employees, contractors, and users.

It is clear that OMB's aim is to stop civil rights enforcement by eliminating information crucial to that enforcement

It has parallel in the Justice Department's war on numerical guidelines in affirmative action programs and in the government's own reluctance to comply with requests for statistics about its own employment patterns.

Speaking of numbers, it would be interesting to have some numbers about OMB itself -- how many blacks, Hispanics and women it employs in professional positions and how many were involved in its current campaign against vital statistics.

Effective measurement is a form of control. Take away the data and you lose control. OMB is trying to make sure the government loses control over civil rights enforcement

Black Jewish Center.

Black African states that had broken off diplomatic relations with Israel after the Yom Kippur War, largely under Arab pressure, have begun quietly to resume economic and diplomatic ties with the Jewish State, according to the latest issue of Boycott Report, an American Jewish Congress publication.

The Boycott Report, quoting accounts in the Paris weekly, Jeune Afrique, and in the Economist of London, notes that despite the lack of diplomatic relations, Nigeria, Kenya, Ivory Coast, Ghana and Togo all do "lively business" with Israel. About 1,000 Israelis are now working in Nigeria. A Nigerian presidential candidate, Chief Obafemi Awoloho, recently visited Israel.

Sierra Leone and Kenya for some years have allowed Israel to maintain "special interest sections" in the embassies of foreign countries, the Boycott Report said. Solel Boneh (SBI), one of Israel's construction companies, "has had firm footholds: in Nigeria, Ivory Coast and Kenya for decades. Some 70 percent of the company's activities are in Africa where it employs 15,000 local workers and 400 Israelis. Nigeria alone owes SBI $120 million, the Boycott Report quotes the newsletter, The Middle East.

Another Israeli company, Yonah International, recently signed a $15 million contract to build offices for the Liberian National Bank. Rep. William Lehman (D. Fla.), who recently visited Black Africa, reported extensive construction under way in the Ivory Cost by Israeli contractors. One such project is the huge modern Catholic cathedral being built by Sonityra, and Israeli firm.

Zaire, which has resumed diplomatic relations with Israel, has forfeited $120 million of Saudi Arabian money, the Boycott Report stated. "The Israelis are seeking private investment funds for Zaire to make up for the lost of Saudi funds," according to the Boycott Report. "The Organization or Rehabilitation Through Training (ORT) is managing various construction and repair projects in Zaire."

Israel now has development projects in 20 African states, including Gabon and Tanzania. The projects include irrigation, soil management, health care and early childhood education.

Last August, Rep. Howard Berman (D. Calif.) introduced a bill (HR 5424) to provide $20 million for joint U.S.-Israel development programs in Third World countries. In an attempt to block what they consider Israeli "infiltration" in Black Africa, Senegal and the Arab League have set up an African-Arab inter-parliamentary committee and are planning other anti-Israel moves, the Boycott Report stated.

New Treatment For Osteoporosis.

Osteoporosis is among the most common disease associated with aging, affecting one in four postmenopausal Caucasian women. This often debilitating condition was once thought to be an unavoidable and irreversable consequence of growing old.

Now, however, new methods of detection and promising new treatment modalities may improve the outlook for patients with osteoporosis, says Dr. Susan Ott, attending physician professor of nephrology at the University of Washington.

Osteoporosis literally means "porous bones." Sometimes called the "brittle bone disease," it is a disorder in which bone tissue decreases, due to loss of calcium.

The bones become thinner and fragile, and spontaneous fractures may result from such simple actions as opening a window or lifting a heavy pan from the oven. The forearms and spine are usually affected first. Later, hip fractures may occur.

Over time, the weakened bones of the spinal column, compressed by body weight and gravity, may collaspe in what is known as a spine compression fracture. This may cause loss of height, a humped back, and pain.

The Harborview Metabolic Bone Disease Clinic provides state-of-the-art diagnosis and assessment for patients with osteoporosis.

Ott explains that a new technique, called dual beam photon absorptiometry, is used to measure bone mass in the clinic's osteoporosis patients. "This gives us a sensitive baseline measurement of the severity of the individual's bone loss, and a way to measure the efficacy of treatment," she says. "We also perform CT scans, X-rays, and bone biopsies, as needed. Follow-up treatment is available in our clinic, or we will make suggestions for care to the patient's personal physician."

Clinic

Ott is currently involved in researching several promising new treatments for osteoporosis. For example, estrogen therapy following menopause has been shown to slow bone loss, while calcium supplements, activated vitamin D, and flouride may actually increase bone mass.

Harborview clinic patients can participate in clinical trials of these and other treatment methods. For more information call 223-3160.

Indians.

Chief Satiacum, great-great-grandson of Chief Seattle, at the forefront of struggles for Indian rights for more than 35 years, ranks among on of the great Chiefs of North American history.

When Chief Satiacum assumed his hereditary chieftainship in the late 1940's the Puyallup people had 6 acreas of cemetary land and the tribe was listed as terminated by the U.S. government. Nearly 18,000 acreas of Puyallup Treaty lands had been illigally taken away from them.

Young Satiacum, constantly counselled by his grandmother and the Tribal elders, was told to do something to regain lost land, lost rights and improve the economy of his people. Satiacum was so successful that the full weight of the American justice system was brought down on him to terminate his activities.

It was Satiacum who started out alone in 1948 to begin the long fish war that resulted in the early 70s decision by Judge Boldt to guarantee 50% of the fish causht in Washington State to the Indian people.

It was Satiacum who was the driving force behind the Puyallup Nation's land claims against the city and Port of Tacoma to regain lost Indian territory. The Puyallups have now regained over 300 acres and validity to their claims because of his work.

It was Satiacum who pioneered the tax-free smokeshops, liquor outlets and other highly profitable enterprises on reservation lands, enterprises that have brought considerable wealth to tribal peoples.

It was Satiacum who was the soul of his Nation. He fought to revive a dying people and succeeded.

But valid Indian ownership claims to the lands of Tacoma and its deep-sea port have created intense fear and resentment amongst the residents and local government of the area.

But Tax exemptions for businesses on Indian lands was a little too much for state coffers and local non-Indian usinessmen to accept.

The price of success for Robert Satiacum is a 300 year prison sentence.

This appeal to the people of North American is to show how the man, Chief Robert Satiacum is not unlike the man, Martin Luther King. To help you understand how much they were alike I will show how both men fought for the same things.

Martin Luther King tried to free his people, Chief Robert Satiacum tried to free his people. Martin Luther King fought for the rights of his people, Chief Robert Satiacum fought for the rights of his people. Martin Luther King tried to lead his people out of poverty and up to a better standard of living. Chief Robert Satiacum tried to lead his people out of poverty and up to a better standard of living. Martin Luter King was persecuted by the U.S. Government for his actions. Chief Robert Satiacum was persecuted by the U.S. Government for his actions. Martin Luther King was killed for his efforts. Chief Robert Satiacum was sentenced to 300 years for his efforts.

Eight Talent Tacoma Students Head For Texas

Eight very talented Tacoma students will be going to Dallas, Texas, this summer to participate in the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) ACT-SO (Afro-Academic, Cultural, Technological, and Scientific Olympics).

ACT-SO is designed to give Black youth an opportunity to exhibit skills in academic and cultural pursuits in much the same way athletic competition does. The Tacoma students will compete against more than 800 youth from throughout the country at the NAACP National Convention on June 21-27, 1985, in Dallas, Texas.

The following students comprise this year's Tacoma ACT-SO Team:

NAME	GRADE	SCHOOL	AREA OF COMPETITION
Charita E. Gray	12	Foss	Architecture
Carol A. Howell	11	Wilson	Music, Instrumental
Lisa M. Hursey	11	Foss	Music, Vocal
Elnora Palms	12	Wilson	Dramatics
Pamela S. Smitherman	12	Wilson	Biology
Nichelle E. Spencer	12	Lakes	Drawing, Film-Making, Photography, Painting
Tawanna J. Ward	12	Foss	Playwriting, Oratory, Original Essay
James T. Watson	11	Stadium	Music, Composition

Chaired by H.R. "Rock" Thomas, Jr., Director of the Tacoma Public Schools' PUSH/Excel program, the NAACP ACT-SO/Education Committee sponsors the local competition annually. This is the fifth and strongest Tacoma Team to go to the National Convention.

New Vaccine For Children

Tacoma-Pierce County Health Department officials are recommending Haemophilus influenzae, type b, or Hib vaccine for children of certain age groups.

Hib vaccine has just been licensed for use in the United States by the Food and Drug Administration, on April 17, 1985.

Hib disease can cause serious illness, such as meningitis (inflammation of the brain), epiglottitis (a life threatening respiratory condition), pneumonia, arthritis, bone and skin infections. In the United States these diseases can affect on of every two hundred children before they reach five years of age.

Immunization of children over 24 months of age who have not yet received Hib vaccine should be based on risk of disease.

The Health Department will be giving the Hib vaccine starting Tuesday, July 2, 1985 and will be available eact Tuesday and Thursday afternoon from 12:30-4:00 p.m.

The cost will be $11 per dose.

President Reagan Appoints Stanley Scott To Comission On White House Fellowship.

Stanley S. Scott

NEW YORK, NY --- Stanley S. Scott, Vice President and Director of Corporate Affairs for Philip Morris Incorporated, has been appointed to serve on the President's Commission on White House Fellowships.

The Commission selects distinguished members from the business, professional and military sectors, to serve as White House Fellows who spend a year working in one of the executive branches of the Federal Government.

NAACP Annual Convention In Dallas Texas

NEW YORK -- Once again the NAACP returns to Dallas, TX to hold its annual convention. The convention will be housed at the Dallas Convention Center at 630 Griffin Street from Sunday, June 23 through Thursday, June 27. More than 10,000 people are expected to attend this year's convention.

When the NAACP first held its convention in Dallas in 1954, black Americans were celebrating the Association's landmark victory in the Brown v. Board of Education case in which the United States Supreme Court outlawed the "separate but equal" doctrine.

NAACP Executive Director Benjamin L. Hooks, who will deliver his address at a public mass meeting on Sunday, June 23 at 7:00 p.m., said that since the Brown decision, much has been accomplished in the area of civil rights, "but today we are faced with a concerted effort by the government to roll back those gains." Appropriately, the NAACP's convention theme is "Help Make Democracy Thrive -- Join the NAACP in '85."

On Monday night at 7:00 p.m., Dr. William F. Gibson, chairman of the NAACP National Board of Directors, will deliver the keynote address. Dr. Gibson is a dentist in Greenville, S.C., who has been involved in civil rights since 1960 when he was chairman of the education and voter education committees of the Greenville NAACP branch. He succeeds the late Kelly M. Alexander, Dr., who died in April.

Throughout the week other prominent speakers will address NAACP delegates including U.S. Rep. William H. Gray, III (D-Pa.), U. S. Rep. Mickey Leland (D-Tex.), U.S. Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins (D-Ca.) and the Rabbi David Saperstein, co-director and counsel, Religious Action Center of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

Mr. Hooks said the NAACP's return to Dallas will emphasize "the on-going struggle by black people to make America a true democracy and the continuing role of the NAACP to reach that goal."

Hostages

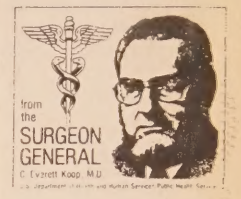
Gunmen hijacked Athens-to-Rome flight with 153 passengers and crew last Friday. One passenger, 23-year-old U.S. Navy Petty Officer Robert Dean Stethem of Waldorf, Md., was killed by the hijackers.

Officials of Amal, the Shiite Moslem militia, said most of the remaining 40 American hostages were being held in Shiite-controlled western and southern Beirut, to press the hijackers' demands that Israel release more than 700 Shiite prisoners accused of planning or carrying out attacks on the Israeli army in southern Lebanon.

Tom Goodman, and ABC spokesman in New York, said correspondents Charles Glass, Julie Flint and Derwin Johnson were permitted to approach the plane and stand under the cockpit for eight minutes to interview pilot John L. Testrake, who was described as looking "very tired."

Testrake told the reporters, "Not very much is happening to us now, since Sunday night, because they removed the other passengers and took them away, and the three of us have been on the aircraft since then. It's just a case of wait and see what happens, so we've just been taking up quiet housekeeping on the aircraft."

Asked about the remaining hostages, Testrake said: "...We've been told that they've been taken to a safe place, that they are comfortable and being well taken care of."



Eating Wisely During Pregnancy

Everyone needs a well-balanced diet. But when a woman is pregnant, her nutritional habits become doubly important. She needs essential nutrients to help her maintain her own good health. Her baby needs proteins, calories, vitamins and minerals, in proper amounts, for steady growth and development. A mother who eats nourishing foods is more likely than a mother who does not to have a trouble-free pregnancy and a healthy baby.

During pregnancy, of course, your baby eats what you eat. If you're getting all the nutrients that you need, the chances are good that the baby is getting all that it needs for healthy growth and development. At some point in your pregnancy, probably during the second and third trimesters, your doctor may recommend an iron supplement and maybe a vitamin supplement, as well, just to make sure that you and the baby are getting enough of these essential nutrients. Follow your doctor's instructions to the letter—don't ever take supplements of any kind on your own—and continue to pay close attention to your diet, because the very best sources of nutrients will be the foods you eat.

Variety is the key. During pregnancy, you'll need increased amounts of energy from carbohydrate, fat and protein sources. You'll also need vitamins, especially folic acid, a B vitamin found primarily in green leafy vegetables, and minerals, especially calcium, phosphorous, iron and zinc. One good way to make certain that your menus have this kind of variety is to follow a meal plan that has been prepared for the pregnant woman. Your doctor or the nutritionist at the clinic will be happy to give you a meal plan and plenty of good advice on using it. While your plan no doubt will be tailored specifically to your special needs every pregnant woman requires a balanced diet, each day, consisting of foods from the following food groups: meat, fish, poultry and beans; milk and cheese; fruits and vegetables; and whole grain breads and cereals. Your meal plan will suggest the number of daily servings from each group that you should select.

You need to gain weight during pregnancy—about 25 pounds on the average—to provide for the growth of the baby and the development of related tissues in your own body. When you gain weight properly over the course of your pregnancy, the chances are good that your baby will, too. And your baby's weight is very important. Babies born too small (less than 5-1/2 pounds at birth) can have serious health problems. Babies who weigh in the normal range at birth, about 7 pounds, have a much better chance of prospering.

As you might suspect, it's not wise to try to lose weight when you are pregnant. In fact, after the third month, you'll want to gain weight steadily, at a rate of about a pound a week, until the baby is born. Don't allow yourself to become overweight, however. Extra pounds can bring on complications that you would not otherwise experience, and, of course, the more weight you put on the more difficult it will be for you to get back to your normal figure after the baby is born.

Drinking alcoholic beverages during pregnancy, even in moderate amounts, can cause physical and mental birth defects in the baby. The safest course, therefore, is to ban alcoholic drinks from your diet as soon as you learn you are pregnant.

Similarly, don't smoke when you are pregnant (or at any other time; do your best to stop for good), and never take drugs of any kind—not even simple cold remedies—without first checking with your doctor. At this earliest stage of life, when you and your baby are essentially one, your baby's development is almost entirely dependent upon your health habits. So, help your baby grow strong by taking the best possible care of yourself. Healthy mothers have healthier babies. It's that simple.
